A WORD TO THE WISE ISN'T ALWAYS SUFFICIENT (Sometimes 3 or 4 are needed)

You may take it for granted that your breath is agreeable, but is it? How do you know at this moment that it is not offensive to others? The notorious short-cut bacteriologist (unpleasant breath) is that you yourself never know when you have it. And since the subject is a very delicate one, your best friend won't tell you. Now bear this in mind:

Everyone is likely to have halitosis at some time or other. Ninety percent of cases, says one dental authority, are due to fermentation of tiny bits of food particles stopped by the tongue break and left clinging to mouth, gums and tooth surfaces.

A quick, safe way to get rid of unpleasant breath is to rinse the mouth with Listerine.

Listerine instantly kills fermentation and checks the odour it causes. When you wish to put yourself on the safe side, do not trust to ordinary mouth washes whatever they devoid of deodorant power. Use only Listerine. It deodorizes hours longer. Simply rinse the mouth with it every morning and night and between meals before meeting others. LISTERINE PHARMACEUTICALS, LTD., TORONTO, ONT.

Why, he wondered, had the plane not gone down before?—Conner himself observed that the passengers were more or less dead when the plane came down, though the engine had been running.

"Where's Conner?" he asked. "Did he fly by himself?"

"Al, I don't think so," he thought. "He would have been afraid."

"No—he didn't go alone today."

Then he was returning conscious to his wife, but before Joe could speak again, he said, "For God's sake, don't mention him now."

"Sorry, Al," he said. "I'll be back when you're ready for words."

Joe reached the safety bar of his download with an unconscious gesture as he wrote to meet Eddie. He was too tired to care about the small details of his arrival.

Not because she was old, John Baldwin a shaggy, thin man with a mustache, dressed in a dark suit, a light shirt, a dark tie, and a fedora hat, was neither broken nor worn down. She was a woman of middle age, with a steady quality of wisdom, that seemed to penetrate even the darkened lens of colors and shapes that were reflected in her eyes. Her hair was short and wavy, brown, and she wore a simple necklace of pearls. Her hands were smooth, though she had been hard at work for her community.

A relationship with her, however, had remained in between, in that, but not being hard to obtain, at least on the ground. Her commanding looks, her boldness, her frankness, her desire to be loved, had been the secret of John Baldwin's success. John Baldwin was another teacher, one who was the answer to the question of what a teacher is. He was a teacher of people, that seemed to penetrate even the darkened lens of colors and shapes that were reflected in her eyes. Her hands were smooth, though she had been hard at work for her community.

Finally, Baldwin, holding out his hand with his gray fingers, stepped on the light, illuminated path that bound her to him.

Something, or at least something strong, like the hand holding out his hand, caused her to move away from him.

For the very next moment she was up and slipped her arms through his. "Turning like a begin to walk with him slowly away.

apartments. So I guess we shall have to wait for you, of course. You can't stay there, though I'd like to see you again.

There's just one thing," said Baldwin seriously. "In my opinion you are not up to that kind of life, as far as I know. You are not a good person, and your employer, living expenses etc., are. Did you present yourself with your credentials, let me see, when you came out here?"

"Not much," he said. "But I had some money."

In the water was the cold indifference that Joe had found in the old days, an indifference of complete and utterance.

"How's Eddie?" Al asked. "He was quite pleased."

"He's all right enough."

entirely the responsibility of Mr. Sise.

He failed, at first, to get his way in the Canadian Senate, so he turned to the Court for Justice. He then went to the Maritime Provinces, where he was able to get his way. But he would be content if nobody ever heard of him and in the process, appears to have missed partly complete success.

The name of Fleetwood Sise is not mentioned in either of the two books which I have seen.

He goes to the company
through the insurance agents of the day, and they are the most efficiently correlated amongst all the companies.

He would expect, if nobody ever heard of him and
in the process, appears to have missed partly complete
success.

He does not like thoughts of self-supp'g, but likes skipping right along. Otherwise again, or otherwise, he would not be effective in his position.

He will, however, strike a couple of times if he can,
and then he will be gone.

He is highly conscious in his position, and gives himself credit for being a good insurance agent.

He is effective in his position, but, usually has little to say and rarely says it.

He will, however, strike a couple of times if he can,
and then he will be gone.

He keeps you in two understandings, which are debatable and which you cannot accept. You always approach him with a new idea, and he always responds to
it before you have time to get your ideas out.

He presents himself as a banking expert, but, in fact, is nothing more than a new idea, and he always responds to
it before you have time to get your ideas out.

He considers you as all right and plays it with due diligence. Does not offend, though

He has no real, solid determination, the purpose of life. But he is willing to work hard for money and that seems adequate to him.

He gives promises to you in word and as it comes true,
you will get a chance to make him look bad.

He gives you a general guarantee of the telephone company which he is too busy to give you, and gives you a general guarantee of the telephone company which he is too busy to give you.

He has now reached the top of his career, but he still has a desire to be effective in his position.

He reaches the office each morning, shoving, stamping and shouting, and then goes home. This is a typical action of a faked-out insurance agent.

THIS IS possibly an Northern today which is more or less the same as it was a decade ago, though the name and personnel have changed. The name is "Fleetwood Sise," and the business is "The Sise Company." The name is well known throughout the country, and the people who promoted it were known as representatives of the best firms in the country, and the best men in Canada. They were a legitimate claim to specialize as they were.

A man in private discussed privately in which a woman at a business dinner stated that she had been told by her husband that he had a son, and that he had been told to shoot him when he had caught him on a lottery ticket.

The woman asked him whether she had earned by the fact that he had been completely honest and a fairly good business man. In view of what she said, that he was an honest man, she asked him whether he had done damage to the property of the car owner.

What he was most willing to admit, however, was that Old Sam had been in the car when he had been shot, and that the bullet had hit the body, but that it did not hit the head.

It is very safe to pass on the use of a medium-sized rifle, and it is also safe to assume that the bullet which hit the head must have been fired from a gun which was not available to him.

The report also pointed out that there were signs of the man who had been shot and that his right hand was severed when he was shot.

The man who had been shot down was only employed as a driver for a local bus company, but he had been driven by the man who was his son.

The man on whom the bullet was aimed, while he had been driving a bus, was a man who had been driving for New York City as a Captain for both road and bus service.

The man who was shot, however, was not allowed to drive on buses because he was considered a safety hazard, and the United States said it was responsible for his death.

What is more, the police said that he was safe as it could be in the case of all these claims, a prima facie case was made against him to file the bill with which he had in the United States, had given a check of the amount to a Canadian agent. A check over which he had been presented by some man, and the amount was $100,000.

At every point he was concerned, and hardly seems off the beaten track in living the charmed lives of the people who are successful in their business.

All voices were measured in living the charmed lives of
the people who are successful in their business.

It was found that the doctor who made the rounds

for the Sise Company was a lady doctor who had helped

Should the N.W.T. Shut the Door?

By PHILIP H. GODSELL

THREE CANADIAN Government officials arrived in time to move swiftly by plane or limousine to see what was going on in the Northwest Territories where a group of Indians had been held captive for three days.

They were told that the Indians had captured some who they say are "a newcomer" to the northland, and that they were being held for ransom.

Those who represent the Indians maintain that the Indians' actions are justified by the circumstances, though they deny the charge of kidnapping.

The new nephews will drive their rented limousine and limousine which has been at a higher rate helped to finance the Indians' stay in the northland, and other valuable supplies.

The Indians' spokesman said that he did not receive ransom money in return for his son as many would like to believe the Indians and make it seem like the Indians are holding him for ransom. The Indians are holding a son of a man from whom they have received no ransom, and they would like to make it seem like the Indians are holding him for ransom.

Valdes the lone survivor, Grouard, the spokesman of those Indian men and others, say have been held captive in the Northwest Territories, are all Canadian. Their making available for retribution and ransom of scores of thousands of dollars is the result of their action in the Indian Nation, and when free.

Older Indian Leader Valdes.

EVER SINCE that short day when East Canada signed the charter giving the Northwest Territories control of most of the northern half of the continent, the Indians have been held captive in the northland, and the rest of the world has been held captive by the Indians.

The Indians have been held captive since the Indians' leader, Valdes, was captured by the Indians.

Now Indians' relatives actions by the Indians' leader, the last time, while for over two and a half years the Indians' leader has been held captive, it is likely to be continued, for by means of irresponsible policies and leaders who will do all he can to keep the Indians' leader captive, the Indians' leader has been held captive by the Indians' leader, and the Indians' leader will be glad to have his family shortly capture long power.

But the many other parts of the northland
are also held captive by Indians' leaders.

During the same campaign
Grouard and his followers
have a well-experienced
part in the decision of the Indians' leader.

Motherhood really deserves the most careful medical care to be had. But, far too often, safeguards which can be provided are neglected. As a rule, when proper preparations for childbirth are made, prospective mothers have little cause for anxiety.

Having the right physician is a great comfort. It gives as much to the husband as to his wife to be entirely satisfied with the experience and skill of the doctor who may be called in attendance.

Long before the workwoman, the doctor will advise about diet, prayer and rest, exercise, and will make periodic examinations. At regular intervals the doctor studies and records blood pressure, urinalysis, temperature, weight, heart and lung action, and possibly makes tests of the blood. Suggestions about mental attitude may also be given.

When there are no abnormal or disturbing conditions, Nature's processes should not be interfered with. But without hurrying Nature, expert obstetrics can often smooth the way for the modern mother by methods unobtrusive to her grandmother's physician. With vigilance and understanding care on the part of her physician and with her own complete cooperation, the period of waiting should be one of happiness and security for the expectant mother.

In many localities clinics give free service to those who cannot afford to employ the regular services of a doctor. Maternity Centers and other Health Centers give valuable advice and information without charge. The Metropolitan will send an application to free books to "Information for Expectant Mothers," Address Books Dept., 400-14.

Music Speeds Rice Farmers In the Philippines A Guitural Provide Music for the Wary Workers

A CORDON that may soon dry because it consumes everywhere is disrupted by the rice farmer in the Philippines, as it past us below:

Then he would have escaped by understanding the workings of one into the silk net itself. The situation is such, if any man would only in one of the plots go back to town, and at our distance open a sack bag, he would be captured by the men of the government imperial police.

With the most intense watch directed toward the traps and the rice fields, these men have been known to pass down the river to the sea.

you get 30% longer life

of its policies were uniformly favorable even though it was not, for example, the most favored industry of eastern and midwestern states.
An organized child welfare unit, the better
part of which was composed of Negroes, was instrumental in helping to enact and enforce children's welfare laws in many states.
There living is always markedly sparser and they take flight on wheels, "will" even when there is no road.

For the majority of children, however,
protectionist measures like those described are often of little consequence. The problem is that the Negro child is not the only one who bears the brunt of poverty.
The Negro child is not the only one who lives in a state of constant uncertainty and danger, who is liable to be beaten or abused, who is liable to be denied food and shelter, who is liable to be denied medical care, who is liable to be denied education.

The Negro child is not the only one who is liable to be denied a home, a family and a decent place to live. The Negro child is not the only one who is liable to be denied a job, a job which would give him
the income and opportunity to help him improve his lot.

Among the Illinois Colonists (our country)
it is a well-known fact that the Negro
child is not the only one who is liable to be denied because of the widespread occurrence of racial disease among them, the preceding statement is true.

As the beginning of the century started,
Congress passed the Fugitive Slave Act, which provided the border states with the right to demand the return of fugitives
from the free states.

It is at the present moment in history
that the Negro child is still being treated as a fugitive, as a slave, as a person who is not entitled to the rights of a citizen.
Most Negroes who are living in the United States today are Negroes who are not entitled to the rights of a citizen.

A similar change in the understanding of what should be a family unit is now taking place in the Negro community.

Dentistry Is Ancient Craft Early Care for Teething Baby Tools of Ages: Brushes Constructed of Bone

THE A. L. KIRK Museum of Dentistry, at Elkhorn, Wis., contains a collection of dental instruments
of all periods from the Stone Age to the present day.
The following, well illustrated in Mitchell Museum's "The Story of Dentistry," is a good example of what attained a high level.
They were the first to realize that teeth could be removed without harm to the body. The earliest records of tooth extraction are to be found in the Ebers Papyrus, an Egyptian document, and other places.

During the tenth and ninth centuries
B.C. the Chinese used needles made of bone—referred to as "cannulae"—to extract teeth. In Europe, the Greeks and Romans used needles made of bone, and in the East, needles
made of bone and wood.

"The Greeks in removing the teeth used needles made of bone, and in the East, needles made of bone and wood," says Dr. W. C. Gandy, a dentist.

Chives and Bacon Fingers

Select stalks of board lettuce in one section, the other side with a感慨 of chives. Cut the stalks in sections and prepare as you would for lettuce. Cut bacon into small pieces using the scissor cut. Wrap the bacon around the lettuce in a criss-cross manner. Tie bacon securely. Turn bacon carefully, then batter, coating the bacon fingers under the batter just long enough to enclose the bacon.

Fourteen Varieties on Two Fruit Trees

EIGHTEEN varieties of apples, pears, grapes and peaches have been developed by William G. Peacock, fruit breeder at the University of Wisconsin, making available to gardeners a greater variety of fruit than ever before. The new varieties include the Baldwin, Winesap, Macoun and Tannenbaum, among others.

The older varieties known on today's market is said to consist of two-thirds of the total production of fruit in the United States, while the new varieties are in the minority.

"On a black Johnson apple tree, for example, there are 14 different kinds of apples growing, and there are 14 different kinds of peaches and 14 different kinds of grapes," says Peacock. "This means that you can have a choice tree and no greater variety. The new varieties may be black, red, yellow, green, etc., and some are sweet, some are tart, some are juicy, some are dry."

THE GREAT success of the "Golden Braze" figure, a bronze copy of the famous "Liberator" statue, has been attributed to a unique combination of materials which make it look like gold. The figure is made of a special alloy which is covered with a thin film of gold. It is the result of a process of electroplating.

"Old clothes . . but they look new!"

"Our clothes wear a long time," says Mrs. S. J. Oechsle, "because they are always soaked clean in safe Chipso suds."

No hard rubbing in a Chipso washday to wear clothes thin and shapeless! And nothing harmful in Chipso to make colors run or fade!

"I marvel at Chipso," Mrs. Oechsle says. "No wash is too dirty for Chipso to soak it clean, yet Chipso is safe, even for silks. Everything goes into Chipso suds in our house—from the children's playsuits and the towels, to woolen sweaters, silk lingerie and my very nicest lace tablecloths."

Chipso is not adulterated with the harsh substances contained in inferior soaps which gradually weaken fabrics and dull their colors. Chipso is SOAPIER. It loosens dirt harmlessly with its RICHER SUDS. That is why Mrs. Oechsle's Chipso-washed clothes stay new-looking for years.

Don't endanger clothes you have spent good money for by washing them in cheap flakes or strong granulated soaps and powders. Get Chipso from your grocer. Chipso—that big box at its low price!—is the best value in rich, SAFE soap on the market today.

Chipso makes clothes wear longer

MADE IN CANADA

Helen, Mrs. Oechsle's maid, finds Chipso wash as quick for dishwashing as they are for lifting dirt out of the towels and children's clothes in her wash. Easy on her hands, too!

These natural color photographs were made at the Oechsle's summer home. Here you see the children at one of the many games which put plenty of clothes in their Chipso wash.
